The speech of Gen. Fremont, in our columns this morning, will bear reading to the end, and attention should be taken to place it in the hands of the people.

The communication in another column, on the late railroad cases at Pittsburgh, possesses interest which will attract the consideration of the public, more especially railroad managers.

The Charleston Courier again outlines Seattle as citizens against opening out the country for all ground, as their speeches are corrected to include the same among a class of people in the North who have not yet got over certain unreasonable prejudices engendered by the war. The Courier thinks it due to the feelings of this class that Seattle in opinion should be punished.

Gen. Lee has given it as his deliberate opinion that if the Democratic party does not succeed at this election, "the country will be ruined." No doubt Lee thought the country would be ruined if he did not have Richmond, and when forced compliment him and the armies of the Confederacy to evacuate, he profanely was fully convinced that country was ruin but come at last. Gen. Lee's opinion is not likely to go very far with the people of this country, outside of their party friends who are for the rebellion.

Fremont declares, who favored the rebellion in 1861, gave it the natural support to the close, in a speech in Milwaukee in 1864, spoke as follows: "I would not denounce this Democratic Administration for mere political error—I would not condemn it because its members have erred in judgment, but I denounce it because I believe it has entered on a settled course of policy dangerous to the welfare of the country. In measures we are to be met squarely by two powers, the power of policy and the power of the army."

The outrages perpetrated upon Republican meetings and processions, which were commenced on the night of General Seward's reception, and have been repeated at intervals ever since, have no parallel in the history of Pittsburgh. Although we have a very large police force, not a single arrest has been made, and no measures have been adopted to protect our citizens—while generally permitted to open an howling of rebel proscription our streets, enforce the assaults of those who had scarce from dark abyss and to stops. It is evident that the police are not to be relied upon. How long can such a state of affairs be permitted? How long can and should be permitted?

A scrutiny of the ruling Democratic journals into special game to keep that the grant in the Kentucky platform which calls for "equal taxation of every species of property" was intended to include real estate. It is useless to explain to gentlemen, the Democratic and Democratic Labor Reform organs in this section the particular object upon this very point, and we will not attempt it. We will only say that if the Democratic organs and to particular editors were asked to explain the meaning of the Kentucky platform in this one thing. If this is not meant, pray what is there on earth to carry as such as the opinion or equal taxation, unconducive "property" equal" should mean to refer to real value, we shall then run the farming individual the farmer's earnings at the same time. That is precisely what "equal taxation" of every species means.

Because Seymour is anxious to push the "Irish" question upon public attention Mr. Stevenson, the Democratic candidate for Governor says: "We do not propose to do not, at least, to further the question of the National law," actually, "I declare the honor, the good faith of the country is pledged to the payment of the bonds, and not permitted to evade it. And, merely by way of illustration, of course, he says that the bonds bought by the rebels in England by the Democratic party are to be paid in gold.

FRIDAY EVENING, September 25, 1868.

The advance in United States bonds, which gave the market such a stimulus a fortnight ago, has not been followed up as was then generally anticipated, and consequently the purchasers of "stocks," and are trying to hold up prices in order to unload upon their friends. Indications are more numerous to-day that the speculative movement is approaching a crisis, and it is difficult to look up prices. There is an increasing desire on the part of holders of the old issue to exchange them for the new issues. The former continue to be in the market to a limited extent at 107 to 107½, and the latter at 105½ to 105¾, the difference between the bonds of 1881 and 1865, although both are carrying the same annual interest and of equal value. We see sometimes mixed in private transactions, which is very objectionable, as it tends to confusion. Gold is steady at 140½ to 140¾, and the demand for it is moderate, and not sufficient to cause any excitement in the market. Foreign exchange is dull, and rates are nominal at 109 to 109½ for sixty days, and 110½ to 110¾ for sight.

Stocks—The market was rather dull to-day, and prices are unchanged. We quote Pittsburgh and Connellsville at 57 to 57½, Cleveland and Pittsburgh at 57½ to 58, Fort Wayne at 84 to 84½, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis at 86 to 86½, Allegheny Valley at 47½ to 48, Pennsylvania Central at 84 to 84½, Philadelphia and Erie at 30 to 30½, Northern Central at 50 to 50½, Reading at 93 to 93½, Camden and Amboy at 120 to 120½, Lehigh Navigation at 57 to 57½, Lehigh Valley at 57½ to 58, Canton at 40 to 40½, Cumberland Coal at 30 to 30½, Quicksilver at 32½ to 33, Mariposa common at 12 to 12½, preferred at 25 to 25½, Pacific Mail at 131 to 131½, Western Union Telegraph at 33½ to 33¾, New York Central at 183 to 183½, Erie at 72½ to 72¾, Hudson River at 142 to 142½, Michigan Southern at 93 to 93½, Illinois Central at 134 to 134½, Cleveland and Pittsburgh at 57½ to 58, Chicago and Rock Island at 107 to 107½, Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago at 84 to 84½, Western Union Telegraph at 33½ to 33¾, Ohio and Mississippi certificates at 29 to 29½, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis at 86 to 86½, North Pennsylvania at 61 to 61½, Little Miami at 135 to 136, Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati at 130 to 130½, Panama at 290 to 291, Cumberland preferred at 30 to 30½, New York and Erie at 41 to 41½, Boston Water Power at 8 to 8½, Mariposa preferred at 25 to 25½, Atlantic and Great Western at 27 to 27½, Ohio and Mississippi at 29 to 29½, Ohio and Mississippi preferred at 70 to 70½, Wabash at 80 to 80½, Rock Island at 107 to 107½, Fort Wayne at 84 to 84½, Illinois Central scrip at 134 to 134½, Chicago and Northwestern at 85 to 85½, Chicago and Northwestern preferred at 86 to 86½
